business analyst, maconomy – drive customer requirements into software solutions

Do you possess business acumen? Are you a skilled communicator? As our new Business Analyst you liaise with customers to collect their feedback, and you keep internal stakeholders posted to make sure our software is continuously developed and refined according to the customers' wishes.

identify the business needs of the customers

In the role as our Business Analyst you work closely with the internal Product Team. Your main task is to gather, analyze and communicate the business needs of our customers through detailed specifications that will be used during the implementation and delivery of Deltek | Maconomy's solutions. As a true knowledge coordinator you liaise with our product management and development teams to clarify needs and ensure our solutions support our product goals properly.

You strive to develop a complete understanding of our users, their goals and their work processes, and you communicate your findings to the product teams. You research and analyze alternatives to recommend changes and improvements in line with technology and market changes.

The position as Business Analyst will challenge you to develop your business skills and play an important part in bridging the gap between customer requests and software enhancements. Additionally, you will work in an international company with offices all over the world and a truly global feel.

fast learner with lots of business savvy

You are well into your professional career after successful completion of a Bachelor's or Master's Degree in Business. You already have experience working with ERP implementations, for instance as a business consultant, giving you lots of business savvy within this field. Additionally, you feel comfortable gathering requirements from technical as well as non-technical users.

Using your exceptional written and spoken communication skills, you have no problem developing clear communication lines to internal business and technical stakeholders. Furthermore, you have excellent problem-solving skills, enabling you to find clever solutions to complex problems. You are used to working independently and in highly collaborative teams.
